

Two FCA Announcements

Dear Friends,

I am delighted to share an exciting new addition to FCA’s grant programs: The Roy Lichtenstein Award. Permanently endowed with a $1 million grant from the Roy Lichtenstein Foundation, this new unrestricted, $40,000 award will be made through the Grants to Artists program to an individual artist working and contributing to the creative arts in the spirit of Roy Lichtenstein.

Scroll down to read more about named and endowed grants at FCA, and for a preview of several Roy Lichtenstein posters included in Posters 2: Online Exhibition and Sale to Benefit the Foundation for Contemporary Arts, launching next week. Keep your eyes peeled for the announcement! Its a great way to get involved in supporting FCA’s mission.

With best wishes,

The Roy Lichtenstein Award will be selected each year by FCA’s Board of Directors through the Grants to Artists program. Established in 1993, Grants to Artists provides significant, unrestricted assistance to individual artists in all disciplines; nominations are confidentially accepted from invited artists and arts professionals once a year, and the recipients are announced in January. The inaugural Roy Lichtenstein Award recipient will be announced in January 2018.

The creation of named and endowed grants at FCA is distinguished by the organization’s deep roots in the artist community. The Roy Lichtenstein Award joins the John Cage Award, Merce Cunningham Award, Ellsworth Kelly Award, Robert Rauschenberg Award, and Dorothea Tanning Award as the sixth grant named for an important visual artist of FCA’s founding generation. All endowed within the last five years, these awards immediately increase FCA’s grants for individual artists while honoring those who supported FCA’s work from its founding in the 1960s and beyond.
