Crossroads Miami/Port Au Prince

I don't have electricity. I cannot listen to your radio program. What did you want to say to the public? We are neighbors. brothers, we build a bridge together as we have a lot of traffic to manage between our countries: musical traffic, dance and poetry traffic. Yes, yes, all of this comes with the cliche that all traffic includes traffic jams. But I want to know now if you wish to suggest a practical solution, a scholarship to pay for my education, or if you would invest in a big business and name me a merchant of dreams in the crossroads between Miami and Port Au Prince, between this poem and the current lost in the broken generator from the Electricity Board of Haiti?

© Indran Amirthanayagam 2019